

Bagram Prisoner List

In January 2010, the Obama administration finally released the list of prisoners held at the U.S.-run prison located at Bagram air base in Afghanistan. Although the list was of little use, since it listed only names (and many captives have only one name), without home countries or the date or reason for capture, British author and journalist Andy Worthington has created an annotated list of the men, using previously available research data and the chronological nature of the government's prisoner numbering system.

Andy Worthington's annotated list is here [1].
